When he did this in the instance of the civil rights bill in the Senate, he stated an opinion that put him at odds with most members of the U.S. Senate and the House of Representatives. He knowingly took his political life in his hands, because his NO vote lined him up against the numerous Americans who wanted the civil rights bill passed and signed into law without further delay.

So much for Sen. Goldwater.

REPUBLICANS trying to force into their party's platform a flat statement that the civil rights law is constitutional in the hope of making the platform unacceptable to Sen. Goldwater and his backers are out of line.

What a senator chooses to state as a personal opinion is his own affair. What a political party states as a platform position is something else.

The constitutionality of the civil rights law must be assumed until it has been challenged successfully in the only place where a decision can be made-the U.S. Supreme Court. It cannot be established by a political party.

The Republican platform committee and the Republican convention have no call to be making rulings in areas beyond their competence.

A national convention can no more have a composite opinion about the constitutionality of a law than about cucumbers as a table delicacy.

THE REPUBLICAN CONVENTION can subscribe to the desirability of the civil rights law in general-and it undoubtedly will do so in the strongest possible

But only the Supreme Court can rule on the constitutionality of the civil rights

Good Music

The annual summer concerts being presented by American Federation of Musicians Local 172 again are being received with enthusiasm.

Those who attended the first performance Sunday afternoon at Thompson Park were buzzing with favorable comment after the presentation. As last year, the music was good and the setting enjoyable.

The free concerts are presented through the Union and Recording Industry Performance Fund and Director Vincent Maola and the musicians taking part can take a deserved bow.

In case you weren't at Thompson Park, there are other concerts coming up during the remainder of the summer-July 12 at Chester City Park, July 19 at Newell Junior High School and July 26 back at Thompson Park.

If you like good music, we recommend you sit in on the rest of the concerts. It's a pleasant way to spend a Sunday after-

Namara is the sharpest cabineteer to hit Washington since Andrew Mellon was the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton.

But he is doing something slippery about reporting savings in his department. His cost reduction program, he says, "saved" $2.5 billion for U.S. taxpayers last year. Moreover, says Secretary McNamara, his cost-cutting is coming along so well that he predicts the Defense Department will be "saving" $4.6 billion a year by 1968.

The question is two fold.

First, what will be the basis of comparison for saving money four years from now? Matter of fact, what is the basis of comparison for saving money now?

Second, if money is being saved at a multi-billion-dollar rate, what becomes of it? Is it turned over to some other department? Certainly it isn't refunded to

The idea Secretary McNamra is trying to get across must be that the Federal deficit would be $2.5 more than it is if he hadn't watched pennies in the Defense Department.

He didn't actually save anything. He just refrained from spending something. On this basis, a family that didn't take a trip around the world last fiscal year, didn't buy a cruiser, a mansion in Palm Beach, a mink coat for Mama and a new sports car for its No. 1 son "saved"

That would have been pretty bloodstirring if the family hadn't already been running into debt. Four years from now, if the family doesn't buy an island off the coast of Georgia, a twin-engine plane, a castle in Spain and blow itself to a couple of goat-gland operations, it will "save"

> If Thoreau had written the same things while sitting on a bench in the front yard of the Emerson home, where he had lived much of the time, the impact would have been lessened.

"Our life is frittered away by detail. . . . Simplify, simplify," he wrote in his solitude. And again, "I never found the companion that was so companionable as solitude.

If all the young men bowled over by "Walden" could stand at the spot where Thoreau wrote his essays, chances are they would think of something infinitely more important than the quest for solitude.

THEY WOULD REALIZE that a handful of sensitive Americans talking and swapping thoughts in the quiet little community of Concord, "where once the embattled farmers stood and fired the shots hears 'round the world," had more impact on the civilization they breathed life into than all the millions engaged in what seemed to be more important tasks.

They demonstrated the power of ideas. Henry David Thoreau, one of their lesser lights, immortalized himself with "Walden." The book was regarded as mildly ridiculous when it was first published unsuccessfully and still is by all the go-

I hope that the report is accurate and that BIPAC has attained a stature where it can be an effective force on the political scene and influential in the policy making structure of the parties.

During the last few months I have talked with hundreds of business leaders in all parts of the nation and most of them realize that the nation's economic problems are inexorably linked with political problems. While there is intense interest in the presidential nomination, there is increasing concern with the close races for the House and Senate.

Many roll-call votes-particularly in the House-are decided by only a handful of votes, and a net gain of just a few votes in the House of Representatives may well determine whether we are to go further along the road toward centralization of power in the federal govern-

THE AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education-COPE-is acutely aware of the need to elect candidates in marginal House and Senate races.

Businessmen too long have been hesitant about entering the polticial arena and openly taking sides, since their customers may be divided among the various parties.

Nevertheless, this is a conflict that must be resolved by a decision to support candidates who are understanding of economic needs and are sympathetic with them. In the long run it will do our economy no good if businessmen abstain from taking sides.

The side taken need not be partisan; it makes no differ-

The Protest Vote

By David Lawrence

Election May Hinge On Rights Bill Reaction

Is President Johnson going to win the election easily, or is there a possibility that Sen.

Goldwater, if nominated on the Republican ticket next week, might prove a surprise and bring either a close result or even a vicory? These questions are being discussed every David Lawrence day now not only by politicians but by those people generally who do not put too much faith in public-opinion polls The truth is that the election will turn largely on the extent of a protest vote throughout the United States. It need not necessarily be a nationwide protest, but it could swing whole sections where there are large blocs of electoral votes. What are the causes of the protest vote today? There are factors such as unemployment which will influence local areas, but there are other issues even more active in producing negative votes - namely, the reaction of the people toward foreign policy, especially the cas-ualties in Viet Nam, and toward governmental interference with what have always been considered to be private rights in American life.

The biggest unknown quantity today is the protest vote over what is being called the civil wrongs issue. There are millions of people who are afraid that the Democratic party has embarked on a course which will intrude in the private lives of the citizens and that an enormous expense is about to be incurred to enforce the new law.

Perhaps the most striking example of a protest vote that is building up rapidly is in what is known as the "open occupancy" issue.

CURIOUSLY ENOUGH, this does not involve something which Congress has done, but concerns laws passed in many cities and in such states as New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania. Connecticut. New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Colorado, Alaska, Oregon and California. While the laws vary in their provisions, the objective is 'open occupancy" under housing laws which prevent the owner of a property from selling to whomever he pleases, with the result that property owners in a neighborhood may see real estate values drop because of the enforced admission of people who cause some owners to sell their property and move away. There are more than 32 million homeowners in America - a sizable voting group.

There also are approximately 600,000 licensed real - estate salesmen in the United States. and many of them are disturbed by the state laws.

NOT LONG AGO, Ed Mendenhall, the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, issued a statement in which he said:

"Fortunately, the American public seems to be awakening at last to the threat of forced housing laws, as real estate boards and others point out how they shatter the cherished human rights of private property ownership, despite the emotional appeals of many well-meaning but unthinking people.

"Four recent actions illustrate how the tide is turning dramatically as the public begins to comprehend the specifics of the too-often deceptive catch phrases of 'fair housing and 'anti-bias laws.' Mr. Mendenhall pointed out that just a few months ago voters in Seattle, Wash., emphatically rejected a forced-housing ordinance by a 2-1 margin in a referendum, and that Tacoma, Wash., a month earlier crushed a similar proposal by a 3-1 vote. He mentioned that the Rhode Island House of Representatives turned down a forced-housing bill by a 2-1 margin, and that last December the Wisconsin Legislature voted down a similar bill with the same decisiveness.

THERE ARE important referendum votes coming up in November in Illinois and California on the same issue. Mr. Mendenhall expressed confidence that the voters in those two states would reject forced housing by the same impressive votes. While the federal government hasn't anything to do with local housing laws, it is noted that the recently passed civil rights law grants to a federal commission authority to investigate racial discrimination of any kind, and if this information is not forthcoming police powers may be used to obtain

The mere fact that such an investigating commission exists has served notice on many people that what the states have already tried to do might subsequently be accentuated by federal government action.

There are, of course, other factors of discontent in the electorate today, but the real estate issue is cited as an example of something that has been going on under the surface in many parts of the country. There are evidences that the protest vote is larger than has hitherto been estimated and this has given rise to a belief that maybe the election will not, after all, be a pushover for the administration.

Tariff Decisions Waited

By Joseph R. Slevin

WASHINGTON - President Johnson soon will get a chance to show where he stands on the sensitive question of giving special tariff protection to American companies.

The U.S. Tariff Commission will send new findings in four important cases to his desk during the coming months. One is the controversial watch tariff increase that infuriated the Swiss when President Eisenhower imposed it in 1954. Another is a two-year-old special tax on foreign sheet glass that incited the European Common Market countries to place retaliatory curbs on a number of American products.

A fresh look is being taken at the penalty taxes on lead and zinc and on stainless steel table flatware. Canada, Mexico, and a number of other nearneighbors sell us the lead and zinc. The stainless knives and forks come chiefly from Japan and West Germany.

THE AMERICAN people are paying steeper prices for all of these items because the normal duties were increased to protect domestic companies against foreign competition.

The extra charges were imposed under a so-called "escape clause" that the United States uses to take back concessions that this country gave other nations in past tariff-cutting nego-

The angriest dispute is the one that has swirled around watches. It is the oldest escape clause and penalty for it has been in effect for 10 years. President Eisenhower boosted watch tariffs a huge 50 per cent at the urging of the American manufacturers.

The escape clause cases are coming up again now because the 1962 Trade Expansion Act stresses that curbs against foreign products are to remain in force only long enough to give an affected industry time to adjust

Foreign countries are keeping a very close watch on the four review cases. They complain that there is little point in trying to develop a market here, for American companies get the President to raise the tariffs as soon as people start buying their goods in large quantities.

The cases will be the first escape clause actions to come before President Johnson. President Eisenhower rejected many more tariff boosts than he adopted and so did President

PRESIDENT JOHNSON is under a special kind of pressure to lean toward the freer trade side. He wants to create a favorable mood among the key European countries for the cutting that is to start new year, and he would like to soften European complaints against excessively high "disparities" such as the watch tariff.

The 38-year-old red-haired mother of three says she couldn't be happier. The hiccups stopped about a week ago.

Mrs. McDonald received thousands of letters, telegrams and telephone calls after an Associated Press story described her plight. Most suggested home remedies for curing the hiccups.

The remedy which apparently cured her came from a druggist for whom she now works. The pharmacist, Roy Faith, said: "I just gave her a drug Without

U.S., Soviet Eye UN Force

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States and the Soviet union appear to be moving into a major new negotiation on the future makeup, organization and financing of U.N. military forces employed over the world to deal with threats to peace.

The two powers differ sharply on the extent of control which should be vested as a practical matter in the Security Council rather than the General Assembly and on some other issues.

But State Department authorities said today they are encouraged by the latest Soviet move and believe that the Soviet government may be ready to open serious negotiations on these questions and to cooperate with the United Nations to a degree unknown in the past.

These officials are trying to assess the Soviet Union's intentions in the light of its split with Red China and the fact that it is facing a loss of its vote in the United Nations because of refusal to pay assessments for past U.N. peace-keeping opera-

Disclosure of the Soviet move came Monday night with the release in Tokyo of a Soviet note to Japan calling for the formation of the U.N. military force under the Security Council, the troops to be supplied by the smaller U.N. members, including Communist countries. The five veto powers of the council would provide funds but no troops

U.S. officials are still puzzled by the fact that the note was presented first to Japan and made public there by the Foreign Office.

The United States and Great Britain were not given official Soviet outlines of the proposal until Tuesday night.

the BIG inch

The ruled box above is a oneinch ad. It measures one column wide by one inch deep.

It costs daily contract advertisers only .96 cents.

It looks kinda lonesome by itself.

But look at it this way:

What you get when you buy a one-inch ad in the East Liver-pool Review is not just a single inch of space in the paper, but one inch multiplied by 17,161 copies daily.

So you are really buying 17,-161 inches, which at 168 inches per page would be some 102 full pages of printed newsprint.

That's a mighty big chunk of space for a cost of only $.96. And that price includes delivery to the reader's front doorstep.

Just imagine the cost of reaching all those Review Area families by postcard. It would amount to $686.44 just for postage.

BUT THE REVIEW DOES IT FOR ONLY .96 PER INSERTION!

So you can see that a little oneinch ad is really a pretty BIG inch when it's advertising space in the Review. And the figures show that it's the most effective and economical way possible to let people in this Tri-State area know that you have merchandise and services that they could use.

Let a Review representative show you how a little BIG inch can wake up sales for you.

A Junior Editors Quiz About-FLYERS

ANSWER: On April 16, 1924, 4 U.S. Army Douglas biplanes took off from Seattle, Washington, to attempt the first globe-circling flight, a feat which many people thought to be impossible. With the help of the Navy, pontoons were rigged on the planes while flying over oceans, while wheels were used when overland. This trip was not continuous; it was a set of 73 separate flights, the longest hop beng 830 miles. While flying over Alaska, the "Seattle," flagship of Major Fred L. Martin, flight commander, smashed into a mountain. While the Major and his mechanic were unhurt, the flight was over for them, and Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, in the "Chicago" became the new flight commander. The 3 planes safely reached Japan and flew over Asia and Europe, but in flying toward Iceland, one of them had to be abandoned because of a faulty air pump. Finally, after flying 26,354 miles, the two surviving planes reached Seattle September 28, 1924, having circled the earth in less than 6 months. When these planes started, there were a major, two

FOR YOU TO DO: Check your answer to our question with these facts: The major and one of the sergeants dropped out because of the crash, That left five lieutenants and one sergeant, a mechanic. Two other mechanics were lieutenants, which seemed unfair to the sergeant; so the commander wired Washington, and Sergeant Ogden was promoted to lieutenant while the planes were on the way.
